Throughout history and across all societies puppets have been used as a creative visual support to tell stories, convey morals or make political statements.

Our workshops are not only for kids, but suitable for professional development for anyone who would like to incorporate the creative power of puppetry into their work, such as artists, teachers, social workers and hobbyists.

We also encourage parents and grandparents to enter and explore this magical world together with their children.

Spaces are limited and bookings for workshops and shows are recommended. If you want to book for a larger group we can also arrange additional workshops.
